Entity Presentation (We are)

Eurostat, one of the Directorates-General of the European Commission, is the statistical office of the European Union (EU). Eurostat's mission is to provide high-quality statistics and data on Europe. Eurostat co-ordinates statistical activities at EU level and more particularly inside the Commission.

Eurostat Unit F1 'Social indicators: Methodology and development; Relations with users' mission is to foster progress in European social statistics by providing advice, services and support for an efficient statistical architecture. We ensure development and dissemination of several transversal social indicators covering the European Pillar of Social Rights, culture, and sports, among others. We produce model-based indicators of poverty, income, consumption, wealth and population. The unit leads a project to improve European equality and non-discrimination statistics.

Job Presentation (We propose)

At the Eurostat Unit F1, under the supervision of the manager of the equality non-discrimination statistics project, the expert will contribute to the development of European equality and non-discrimination statistics.

The project is run in close cooperation with the Member States' statistical offices, with other equality statistics producers at national and EU level (in particular with the European Institute on Gender Equality and the Fundamental Rights Agency), and with other international institutions (e.g., the OECD, the United Nations) involved in the development, production or dissemination of equality and non-discrimination statistics.

The harmonisation and improvement actions are done mainly through the equality and non-discrimination task force, which is mandated to work until end-2026. The project team also leads the cooperation within Eurostat to align the relevant concepts, data dissemination and metadata across statistical domains.

The tasks of the expert include:

- supporting the work of the equality and non-discrimination statistics task force,
- developing conceptual and methodological foundations of these statistics,
- contributing to briefings, publications and visualisations,
- analysing data and developing indicators,
- preparing and attending meetings and other events with stakeholders from the Member States, EU institutions and agencies (workshops, expert groups, task forces, ...),
- following up discussions relevant to the file at European and international level,
- networking and supporting the coordination within Eurostat, with other Commission services, other EU institutions and agencies, Member States, and external stakeholders, and
- designing and following up projects on equality and non-discrimination statistics.

Jobholder Profile (We look for)

The expert should have

- professional experience in social statistics or equality and non-discrimination fields,
- a university degree or professional training or professional experience of an equivalent level. A university degree in social sciences or statistics would be an advantage, and
- good command of written and oral English.
